AUTUMN ON THE AMALFI COAST
Gray & Co. pairs with storied Le Sirenuse October 13 – 19, 2014

TORONTO, Canada — Few places in the world can name their walking trails titles like “The Path of the Gods” and get away with it. But on the Amalfi Coast, the moniker feels just right—which is why it ranks among the top hiking destinations for the high-end active travel gurus at Gray & Co. Moreover, the region is home to storied Le Sirenuse—consistently rated one of the best hotels in the world and a longtime favourite of Gray & Co. This fall, the two will collaborate to offer a one-time hotel-and-hike package to travellers keen to discover Amalfi’s gems in style.

“The Amalfi Coast is one of the most incredible places in the world—both rustic and glamorous, and unfathomably beautiful—and the only true way to experience it is on two feet,” says Gray & Co. founder Cari Gray. “Walking gives you the time to smell the lemon blossoms, discover hidden Roman ruins, admire the incredible views, and tune into the unhurried rhythms of local life.”

“The Path of the Gods” is just one of Amalfi’s stunning trails. Offering dramatic views of coastline and sea, Capri and the Li Galli islands, the ancient mule track is situated some 1,640 feet above sea level and winds through forests and across grassy terraces, passing the Grotta del Biscotto (cave of the biscuit) and the hamlets of Nocelle and Montepertuso before eventually dropping into Positano via a series of ancient stone steps. Lesser-known routes present equally ravishing vistas as visitors wander village to village past lemon groves and olive trees. Happily, a long day’s hike on the Amalfi Coast ends just as idyllically in Positano at the Le Sirenuse.

“Le Sirenuse is that rare property that offers the ultimate in elegance and sophistication while feeling perfectly cozy, authentic – and hip,” says Gray. “I attribute that in great part to its legacy as a family-run property and to its current proprietor, my friends Antonio & Carla Sersale. You feel his attention to detail—and her style—in every corner and sun-drenched patio.”

The hike-and-hotel package, available October 13-19 and priced at €600 per room per night + 10% VAT, includes a minimum 3-night stay in a sea-view room, daily breakfast, two massages, one dinner for two at the hotel’s Michelin-starred La Sponda restaurant (lit by over 400 candles) with local wine, plus one signature Gray & Co. guided full-day hike and one half-day hike. Must be booked by September 29, 2014. To reserve, please contact info@sirenuse.it
